

National Award for SEN Coordination (NASENCO)

Overview

Delivered through our accredited partner, The Best Practice Network, the National Award for SEN Coordination (NASENCO) is a statutory requirement for all SENCOs. The Trust supports this excellent opportunity for professional development for its experienced and aspiring SENCOs.

Objectives

The programme:

- enables an understanding of the statutory and regulatory context for SEN and disability equality and the implications for practice in your school or work setting
- provides an overview of the principles and practice of leadership in different contexts
- discusses how SEN and disabilities affect students' participation and learning
- explore strategies for improving outcomes for students with SEN and/or disabilities
- develops strategic working practices
- allows for the critical evaluation about learning, teaching and assessment in relation to students with SEN to inform practice
- draws on external sources of support and expertise
- provides the opportunity to develop, implement, monitor and evaluates relevant systems

Applications are made online through Best Practice Network.

Log onto the website: <http://www.bestpracticenet.co.uk/>

Facilitators	Facilitated through Best Practice Network
Audience	Aspiring SENCOs. Individuals who hold Early Years Initial Teacher Status are also able to gain the Award but this will only be recognised within the 0-5 sector
Commitment	This six-day programme is delivered over one academic year. SENCOs on these programmes receive individual tutor support to ensure successful completion with online learning, a personal tutor, assignments and an eportfolio of evidence. This programme is in conjunction with the University of Bath and has 60 Masters credits. Colleagues must attend all sessions to be accredited
Date	On application
Cost	£1,980 + VAT all schools
Venue	Face to Face sessions at designated learning centre